

SUMMER INTERNSHIP POSTING

RACIAL JUSTICE & NEIGHBORHOOD EQUITY FELLOWSHIP

New Economy Project is accepting applications for its 2019 Racial Justice & Neighborhood Equity Fellowship, a summer internship program open to undergraduate and graduate students. Applications are due by March 31, 2019.

The fellowship offers a great opportunity to work at the intersection of economic justice organizing and cooperative economics, rooted in racial justice, neighborhood equity, and ecological sustainability. The Fellow will work with New Economy Project staff and partner organizations, for example, on campaigns to advance community land trusts, worker co-ops, community-based financial institutions, public banking, and other neighborhood-led economic development.

Over the course of the summer, the Fellow will gain exposure to a range of campaign organizing strategies, including policy advocacy, community outreach and education, coalition-building, participatory action research, direct actions, and more. The Fellow may also gain experience in other research methods, such as GIS mapping, and contribute to our podcast, blog or video series.

The 2019 Racial Justice & Neighborhood Equity Fellowship is a full-time (35 hours/week) summer program that offers a stipend to students who do not otherwise have access to summer internship funding.

Required Qualifications:

- Current enrollment as a graduate or undergraduate student
- Demonstrated commitment to advancing racial and economic justice
- Excellent interpersonal and communication skills
- Outstanding writing skills and strong attention to detail

TO APPLY

Please submit by email to hireing@neweconomynyc.org: your resume, cover letter detailing your organizing experience, and a short essay (1 page max.) explaining why this fellowship would be meaningful to you. Please write "2019 Summer Fellowship Application" in the subject line. Applications are due by March 31, 2019.
